Abla Creasey Named to Advisory Council

Dean Shortell has appointed Abla Creasey, Ph.D., M.P.H. '78, the newest member of the School of Public Health Policy Advisory Council. Creasey is vice president for product discovery and development at pioneering biotechnology company Chiron Corporation in Emeryville, California. Since 1991, she has led research teams seeking to identify new product opportunities related to cancer, cardiovascular disease, and infectious diseases.

Creasey is a School of Public Health alumna and earned her doctorate in microbiology at Berkeley. She has been granted several patents for her work and publishes widely in professional journals. She is an executive member of the Coalition for Critical Care Excellence, a national committee providing global strategic and policy leadership in critical care, and served on the board of trustees for Mills College in Oakland, California, from 1992–1998.

Established in 1993 by former dean Patricia Buffer, the Policy Advisory Council strives to support the school in its efforts to offer the highest-quality professional education, research, and service in all aspects of public health. In addition, council members assist the school in its efforts to link basic research conducted by the University with the health of our communities locally, nationally, and internationally. 🌐

Linda Hawes Clever, M.D., M.A.C.P., a member of the School of Public Health Policy Advisory Council since 1994, founded RENEW in 1999 as a response to the strains affecting her fellow physicians. RENEW helps doctors, nurses, and other health professionals maintain their creativity and effectiveness while managing competing demands on their time. “When doctors and nurses are drained and distracted, it becomes an urgent matter for their patients, their families, and the larger community,” she says. RENEW’s methods are based on Clever’s 25 years’ experience as an occupational health specialist, including her service as chief of occupational health at California Pacific Medical Center (CPMC) in San Francisco. A special project of CPMC’s Institute for Health and Healing, RENEW convenes conversation groups and workshops where health professionals and others with “callings” can identify the sources of meaning in their lives and make better personal decisions to function more effectively. “It’s not about snatching time away from your work to watch your child play soccer,” says Clever. “It’s about making choices about fulfilling practice and personal responsibilities based on your values.” For more information about RENEW, call (415) 459-7398 or visit renewnow.org. 🌐
