

PH291: Preparation for Public Health Practice:

What can You Do With a Public Health Degree?

PH291A (CCN 40902), 2 units

Tuesdays, 4pm - 6pm

Instructors: Lisa Peterson, MPH and Patricia Wakimoto, DrPH, RD

The field of public health is dynamic and ever-changing. PH291 is designed to provide you with a dynamic experience in learning about the breadth of career opportunities for those with a degree in public health.

Meet and network with public health professionals from a range of disciplines who'll share insights into their career paths; learn about graduate student field placements in a variety of work settings; and focus on ways you'll advance your own professional development. Open to graduate and undergraduate students.

Topics include:

- Health Policy and Advocacy
- Mapping Your Life & Career Direction / Network or Not Work
- International Health: Global Health Work Settings
- Private Sector Consulting
- Health Care Delivery Systems
- Community Health Centers and Primary Care
- Opportunities with Local and State Health Departments
- Working Upstream and Meeting Patient Social Needs
- Children, Youth and Families
- Healthcare Startups, New Media, and Health Information & Technology
- Careers in Aging

